Fireman's fast dishes

Cooking on the run

Cooking for a station full of finicky, famished Upland firefighters can be challenging. Meals normally have to be inexpensive, quick and good.

The old adage about firehouses being famous for producing great chili doesn't hold at the Upland station. Chili, however, isn't a particular favorite at Upland Fire Department station No. 1.

"Chili takes too long if you want good chili," firefighter Frank Huddleston, of Upland's B shift at Station No. 1, said.

Culinary routines and recipes have been developed by the men during the years. Many households have particularly favorite recipes and outlooks about cooking.

Station No. 1 is no different. Each of its three shifts HAV different views on cooking.

Firefighters at the department's other two stations rarely cook for themselves, opting instead to bring food from home. C shift at station No. 1 also prefers not to cook.

Juggling cooking chores and frequent emergency calls is the biggest obstacle, according to Huddleston.

The chores of shopping, cooking and cleaning usually are rotated among those on duty. Each of the three shifts at the station have their own schedules and firefighters eat two meals, lunch and dinner. Special breakfasts are served only on particular weekends or holidays.

"I'm the one who normally goes shopping. I go with all the housewives," Huddleston said with a laugh. "I don't mind shopping and cooking, though, because then I don't have to do the dishes."

Microwave cooking literally has saved the bacon and other dishes for the crew. "Sometimes we're just about ready to eat and a call comes in. By the time we get back it could be three to four hours later so we just put it in the microwave. Either that, or we go out to Jack in the Box," Huddleston said.

Ironically, Huddleston, a bachelor, rarely cooks at home.

Firefighters collect about $4 each morning for whoever is going to do the cooking. Each is asked what dishes they particularly want, but "you just can't please everyone," Huddleston said.

"Meals have to be filling, but still affordable," he said. "I try simple recipes. About after a month you go through all your recipes so I ask my cousin's wife."

A zucchini-green pepper-sausage dinner is one of Huddleston's best.

Burritos, steak, baked potatoes and meatloaf appear frequently on the menu. Upland firefighters don't, however, use the meatloaf recipe of their Ontario counterparts. Ontario firefighters jokingly boast of their Alpo meat loaf.

"We all work together and it has developed into a real family situation. It helps us work in the field better," Huddleston said.

Capt. Russ Tingley and the other firefighters on A shift like to eat well for the same money, $4 per day.

They prefer snapper Vera Cruz and baked chicken to burritos.

"Some of the guys on A shift even bring their own cooking equipment from home," Tingley said.

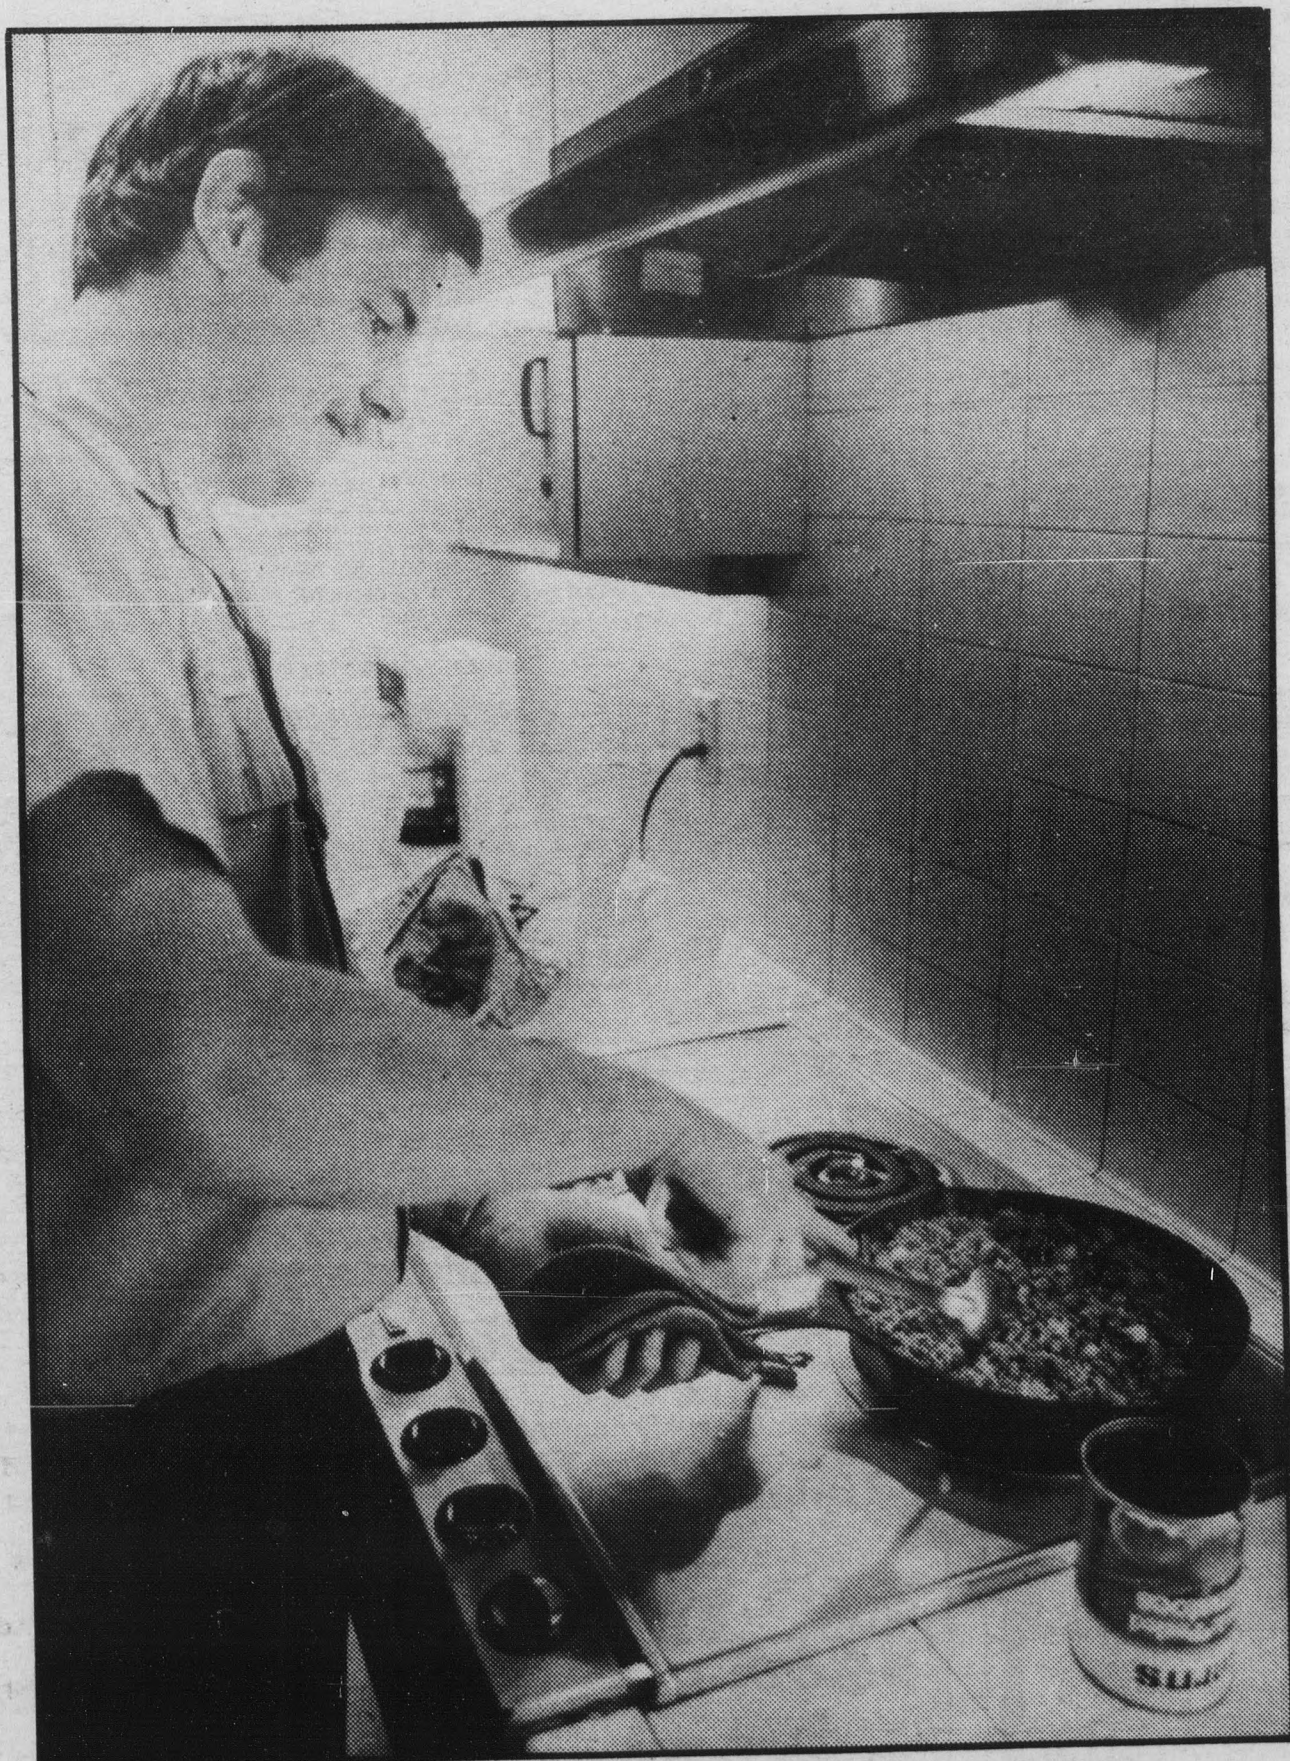

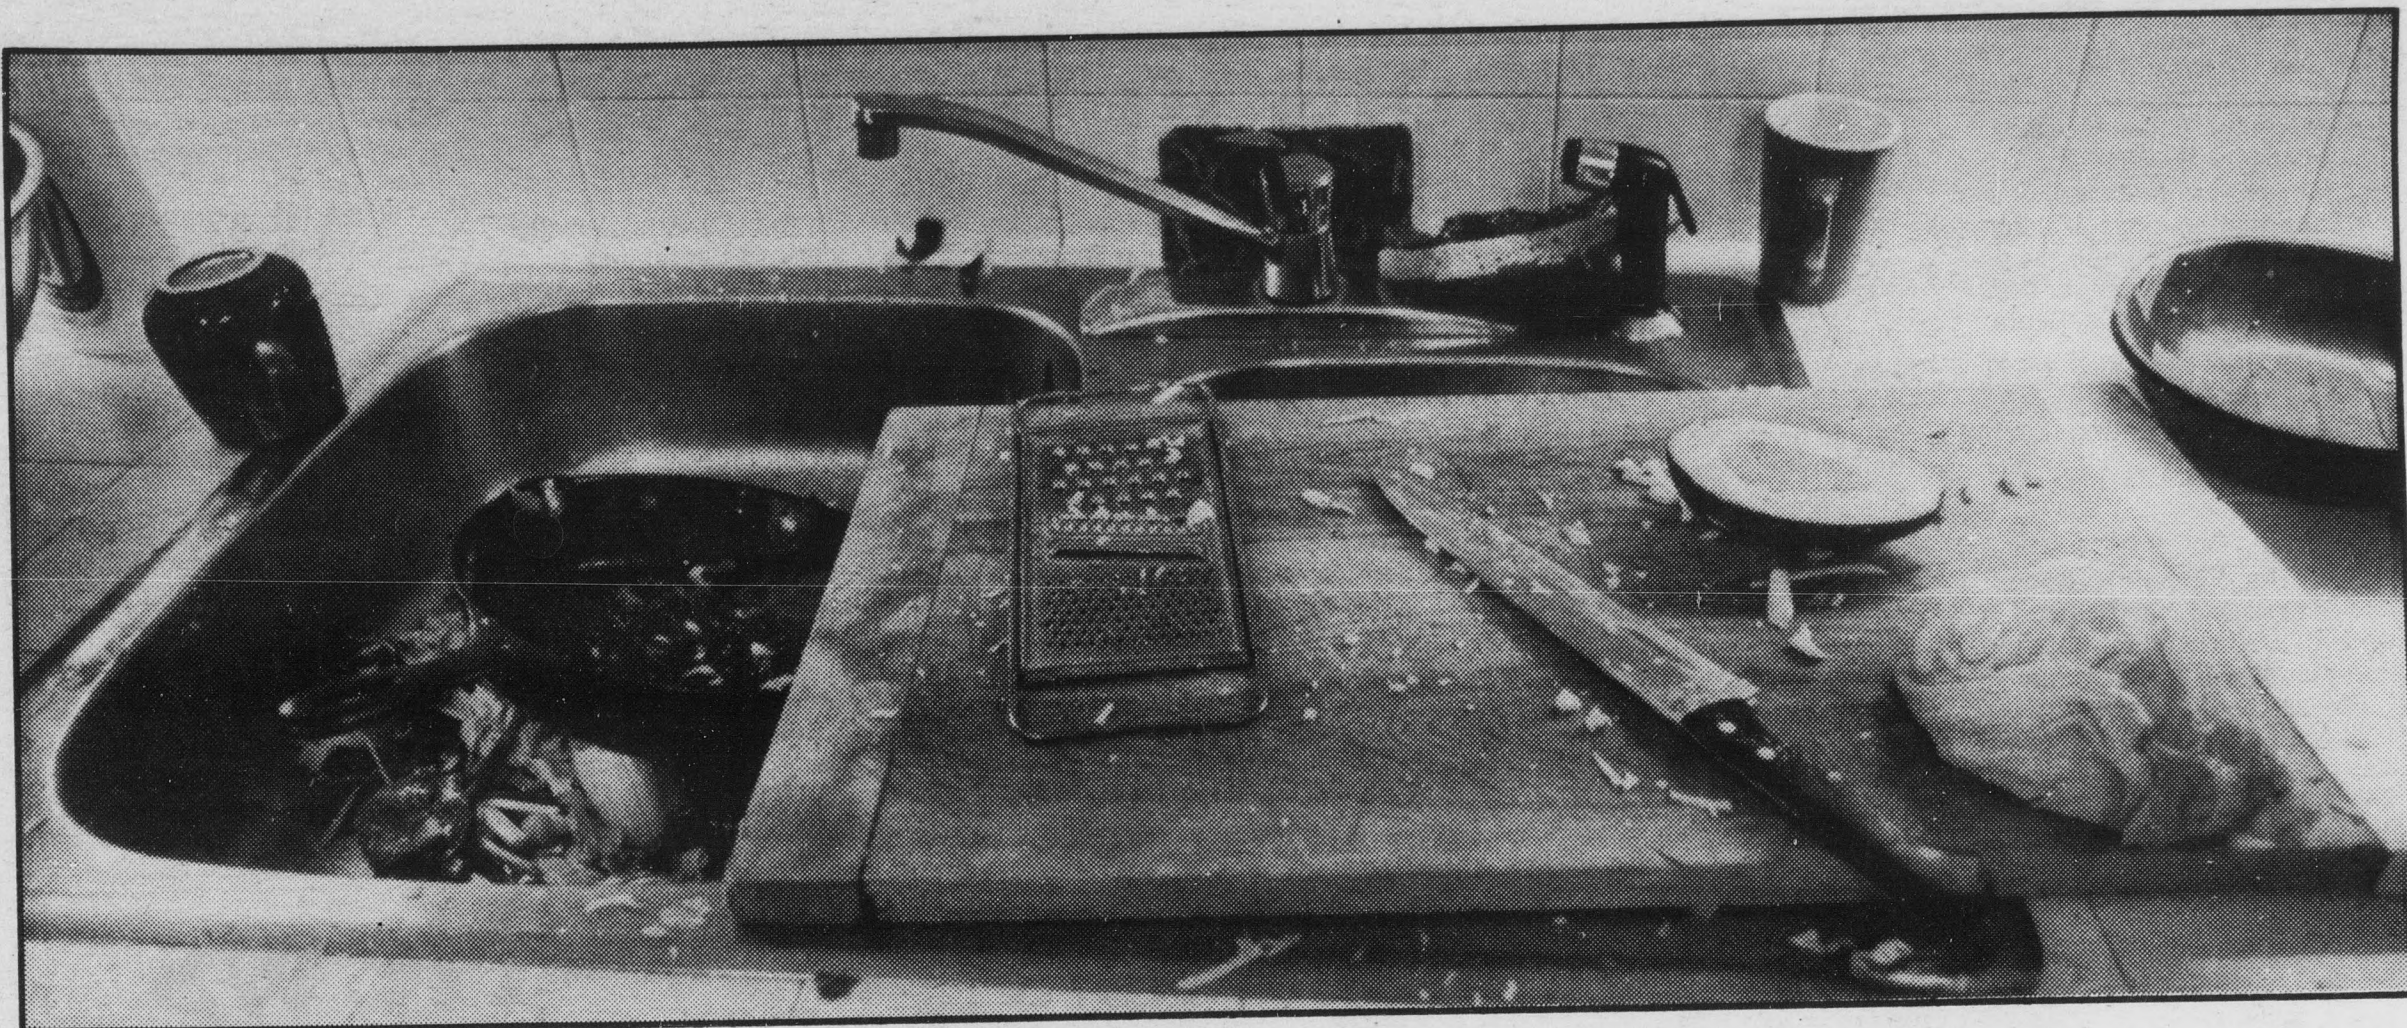

Tingley, a subscriber to Gourmet magazine, said A shift eats a lot of chicken, fish and salads. "B shift eats ice cream. A shift eats tofu," the captain said.

One of Tingley's favorites is sauteed scallops.

Lou Steslicki, another member of A shift, said he doesn't have a specialty. "I cook whatever strikes my fancy," he said. "We try not to eat heavy foods and we're health conscious."

Steslicki enjoys fixing baked chicken. He said he cuts up a whole chicken; tosses it in a bag with flour and seasoned salt; arranges it in a pan; adds half a lemon and half an onion and bakes it with other vegetables for one and one half hours.

"Food should be appealing to the eye and the palate," he said. □

Upland group formed to show how much city wants its students to excel

By Suzanne Sproul

Upland community members have formed a foundation encouraging academic excellence.

Highlander Education Foundation, based at Upland High School, has been incorporated. The group has a board of officers and a board of directors is expected to be elected March 6.

"A group of community members got together and decided that they wanted to provide the same support bandmen and athletes have with their booster organizations," group member Sue Goggin.

Instead of an informal club, the community group decided to form a foundation to ensure that it would continue into the future after the founding members leave, Ms. Goggin said.

Currently the foundation is in its infant stages. Exact plans concerning the course it will take have not been made, she said.

Officers are Lynn Beuerle, president; Patricia Almazan, vice president; John McCallum, chief finance officer; and Faith Girard, secretary.

Included in the group launching the foundation was Upland Mayor Richard Anderson. John Taves of the law firm Anderson, Taves and Reeber donated his services for the legal work involved in the incorporation proceedings.

"We want to provide financial support to enhance academics. Scholarships may be something the foundation will look into. Right now we don't know," she said.

The group asked Upland High teachers what they would do to better scholarship at the school if they had more money. Most requests concerned the need for additional equipment and teaching tools.

Foundation members studied the list and will consider the requests once they have secured money.

"We want to reward and encourage academic improvements and achievements. We want to recognize students who do well and those who have improved their grades from Ds to Cs," Ms. Goggin said.

The foundation hopes to offer the staff support and financial help if available, she said.

Upland High School is deficient in some classroom equipment, especially computers, Ms. Goggin said. The biology department would like to establish an ecological pond, while the science department wants more microscopes.

"The important thing is that it perpetuates itself long after its founders are gone," she said.

McCallum said the foundation realizes its plans are "open-ended" but it was done on purpose.

"Upland High holds a special place in my heart. I was an alumni and I have two children at the school," he said. "I just didn't want to see kids get involved in the wrong things. I'm excited about this."

Foundation members want to cooperate with the Chaffey Joint Union School District.

Mike Dirksen, Chaffey superintendent, said the foundation is very new and the district so far has not become involved with it.

"I do, however, look favorably on anything or program that will somehow benefit our students," Dirksen said.

Anyone wishing to become involved with the foundation is invited to the March 6 meeting in the staff lounge at Upland High. The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m., according to Ms. Goggin.

Clothing:

The Silent Language

Appearance says a great deal about a person before a word is ever spoken. The importance of clothing in social relations has ancient roots. The chief of a tribe is designated by an elaborate headdress and fine robe. The priest's vocation and rank are signified by the style and color of his garments. In the world of business today, the cut of a suit or look of a tie delineate power and authority.

Appearance reflects to others who a person is and what he or she wants. Successful people learn the language of clothing because they know first impressions can have a lasting effect. People can only hear you after they see you. If your appearance says confusion, harsh color or inappropriate fabric, the words that follow from your mouth will tend to lose some of their weight.

Dressing to encourage the positive reaction of others is not dishonest. It is a way to encourage people to regard you with interest, an invitation to explore the dynamic person inside. Dress for success classes available weekdays, evenings and Saturdays.

Dog stirs neighborhood controversy

By Karen Pyke

Does Rancho Cucamonga offer its residents protection from vicious dogs? Sue and Joe Mishica don't think so.

Ever since their son Joey was attacked by a Great Dane, their efforts to have the dog removed from their neighborhood apparently have been futile.

The dog, named Caesar, bit Joey, 12, as he was playing catch with Tim Guerrero at 4:30 p.m. on Dec. 20. The boys were in Tim's front yard at 8478 Comet St.

Caesar, owned by Martha Anderson of 8488 Comet St., allegedly jumped a fence and attacked Joey from behind.

"Me and Joey were out in the front yard," said Tim, 11. "Then all of a sudden Caesar just came out and attacked Joey. I started screaming."

"My mom came out with her friend, Susie, and they got the dog off. Then he went for my mom." Nancy Guerrero said she swung around in her maxi-length coat and scared the dog.

"And then he went for me," Tim said. "He had his two paws up on my shoulders and I was holding his neck. I was scared."

Two of Anderson's sons came and took Caesar away, he added. The children on the street avoid the Guerrero's yard now and play at the other end of the block, Guerrero said.

Joey spent three days in Doctors' Hospital in Montclair with multiple lacerations, a high fever, and much pain, his mother said. The bill for his medical care was $3,000.

"He kept saying, 'Mom, I never did anything to that dog,'" Mishica said.

Mishica thought the dog would be impounded. But she learned the county Animal Control Services, which has a contract with the city, had asked the owners to quarantine Caesar for 10 days, she said.

Joan Hainey, animal control investigator, explained that the 10-day quarantine is routine to watch for signs of rabies. If, after 10 days, the animal appears healthy, it is released.

The Mishicas circulated a petition to have the dog removed and submitted it as suggested by Animal Control night supervisor Linda Lauden. Lauden had told the couple that the petition would be forwarded to the district attorney's office, Mishica said.

However, Mishica later phoned the district attorney's office in Ontario and learned that they don't handle dog nuisance cases, she said.

When they confronted Lauden with this information, Mishica said, Lauden said Animal Control had hoped to persuade the owners to have the dog destroyed while the Mishicas

Offensive drive-in movie critic knows no limits

By SUSANA HAYWARD
Associated Press

DALLAS — Joe Bob Briggs is the most sexist, most bigoted syndicated drive-in movie critic in America.

OK. So he's the only one.

He's infuriated women, angered Mexican-Americans and been called a racist, a jerk, and worse. The Texas redneck is also one of the most popular columnists in Dallas, and an estimated 4 million people now read his raunchy reviews in 50 newspapers.

"Joe Bob Goes to the Drive-In," which has run weekly in the Dallas Times Herald since January 1982, was picked up by the Los Angeles Times Syndicate last March.

In a typical blast, these were the tamest words Joe Bob had for Bo Derek in the movie "Bohannon":

"... We knew it was only a matter of time before the bimbo ripped all her clothes off and ran around acting like a goose that's been wired up for brain research."

If a woman is insulted when he calls her a bimbo, a Hispanic offended by the word Meskin or a black by the term Negro, Joe Bob figures they're just wimps.

"There ain't no sensitive subject. Just sensitive people," says Joe Bob, who claims to hail from "Frontage Road, Texas, dirt mining capital of North America."

Pictures of Joe Bob show only the back of a head, but the character is widely believed to be the creation of Times Herald columnist John Bloom.

Bloom, a soft-spoken 31-year-old intellectual, denies he and Joe Bob are one and the same. He tells questioners he couldn't possibly be the drive-in movie critic because he's college educated and drives a foreign car. Joe Bob is 19, flirted with college for two weeks and drives a 1972 Oldsmobile Toronado, Bloom said.

His heroes are Charles Bronson, Arnold Schwarzenegger, Clint Eastwood and Ralph the Diving Pig, a paddling porcine at Aquarena Springs in San Marcos, Texas, Joe Bob said in response to written questions. Bloom said his fellow columnist responds only to written questions.

His favorite movie is "The Texas Chainsaw Massacre," a low-budget cult horror film made in Texas. Indeed, if heads roll, blood spills and cars collide, it's Joe Bob's kind of movie. And it had better be showing at a drive-in. Joe Bob's crusade is to save drive-ins from extinction.

"We've lost about 750, but I don't think it's any cause for alarm. We still got 3,500 left," he said.

He's been called a communist, racist, offensive and, of course, sexist, as in this review of Brian de Palma's "Body Double":

"But what we got here is 26 breasts, including four full-screen, wide bodied garbonza closeups. One vampire. One sardine imitation. Two porno scenes. One bimbo slapped around. Two motor vehicle chases ... Two dead bodies. One Supremo power-drill scene. One attack dog. Three gallons blood."

Offensive or not, Joe Bob has clearly struck a nerve.

"Obviously we thought it would be a lot of fun," said Times Herald Managing Editor Kerry Slagle. "But we had no idea it would turn out to be such a phenomenon. ... It's one of the most popular features of the paper."

Michael Carmack, promotions manager for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate, said company officials picked up the column because it was "enough off-the-wall that it might really work." They were right.

The Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer yanked Joe Bob's column for two weeks last fall "because of a number of complaints ... that basically he's a sexist pig," said Robert Snyder, the newspaper's features editor.

Snyder said he soon realized his mistake.

"The first day we got 450 telephone calls," he said, the most the paper has ever received over a column. Snyder stopped counting letters after 1,000 but estimated the newspaper received a total of 4,500.

The Plain Dealer "surrendered" and Joe Bob was reinstated, although "offensive" words are now edited out.

Dr. Greg Getz, a professor of sociology at Texas Wesleyan College in Fort Worth who researches the sociology of film, said one explanation for Joe Bob's popularity could be that "people like to be offended."

"A possible analogy is (sportscaster) Howard Cosell," Getz said. "Some people are so offensive that they generate a constituency."

Bloom, a former movie critic who now writes a regular column on the Times Herald's Metro page, attributes Joe Bob's success to his honesty.

"Joe Bob is a redneck, an intelligent one," said Bloom.

"He's honest about bigotry and prejudice. Therefore, you can't hate him as much as a person who's secretive about it."

One letter to the San Francisco Chronicle read: "We are appalled at the offensiveness of your new columnist, Joe Bob, and are shocked at the irresponsibility and disrespect to our community in choosing to publish it."

'Monte Carlo Night' will be hosted by New Uplanders club

The New Uplanders are sponsoring a fund-raiser, "Monte Carlo Night," on March 2 from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. at the Elks Club, 12481 Base Line Road, Rancho Cucamonga.

The New Uplanders have said the funds raised at the event will go to the philanthropic project of the year, illuminating the Madonna of the Trail on Euclid Avenue and Foothill Boulevard.

The Madonna was dedicated Feb. 1, 1929 and is one of 12 statues across the country marking the pioneers' trail to the west. Upland is the end of the trail west.

Donation is $12.50 and includes hors d'oeuvres. For reservations or ticket information, call 981-6687 or 946-0936.

The New Uplanders are also seeking businesses who would like to get a little advertising by sponsoring a table. For information on sponsoring a gaming table, call one of the reservations numbers.

"Sponsorship of a gaming table is tax-deductible and will help make this event a success," said Lola Apel, philanthropy chairman.

The New Uplanders, a non-profit organization, is actively involved in welcoming newcomers to the Upland area and is open to Upland residents of two years or less.

Pool owners sought by YMCA for swimming lessons

The West End YMCA is looking for pools to teach youngsters to swim for its "backyard swim program" this summer.

Donations of pools for use in the program are needed in Upland, Alta Loma, Cucamonga, Montclair, Ontario and Chino. Pool owners donating their pools receive complimentary lessons for their children.

Each pool is donated for a two-week session of the pool owner's choice, either 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m., 1 to 4:15 p.m. or 5:30 to 8:45 p.m., Monday through Friday. Heated pools which meet safety and cleanliness standards are required.

Pool use donations now are being accepted. Further information is available by calling the YMCA, 986-5847.

Catch spring fever early with garden color

By Patrick Denton
Copley News Service

Like most avid flower growers, I never seem to have space each year for all the kinds I like to grow. As well as all the old favorites without which the yard would seem downright undressed, there are so many new flowers to try every year.

I can't imagine our garden without sweet pea vines, for example. We have two circular wire enclosures that are fixed in place at different spots each year for these delightful, fragrant climbers. This way, they take up little space and can be enjoyed in different parts of the yard from year to year. The base of the vines usually is dressed up with a frothy skirt of annual white baby's breath.

Flowering vines grown on trellises, wire enclosures or fences provide blossoms without using a great deal of space. Last year our family also enjoyed canary bird flower, an attractive climbing kind of nasturtium (Tropaeolum peregrinum) against a lightly shaded part of fence in moist soil.

Its frilly little delicate, yellow-spurred blossoms highlight the attractive, deeply lobed foliage. A fast bloomer, our vines were covered in little "canaries" in early summer from transplants seeded indoors early in the spring.

A vine that is a real showpiece in pots or hanging baskets is Thunbergia, or black-eyed Susan. The flowers, in clear, bright shades of yellow and orange, all have black centers, or eyes. These should be started indoors, too, and grown in sun or light shade.

I've been asked by a number of people what annual vine would be best to grow as a summer-only screen for a very sunny, hot porch. I can't think of anything better than scarlet runner beans.

Planted in rich soil and trained up stout twine, rough stakes or laths, these vines with their vivid scarlet flowers and edible beans will make an 8-foot summer screen. Keep the beans for eating, picked while young to keep the vines vigorous and the flowers coming.

Another great way to enjoy flowers without using any garden space is to grow them in pots. Each year we fill our patio with them, both at ground level and on two three-tiered wood frame walls that form the sides of the patio area.

This is on the warm south side of the house were pots of marigolds, viscarias, geraniums, petunias, verbenas, schizanthus and dwarf bedding dahlias make a good show. Here, we like to have a few handy patio and cherry tomato plants, as well.

The north side of the house receives a little early morning sun in summer. Since this is the front of the house, it presents an ideal setting for many lovely shade-loving flowers. Here we hang our fuchsia baskets, above a long planter filled with large-flowered tuberous begonias. Below them we place a long planter of impatiens — the flaming scarlet blitz or the new doubles.

To this collection we add a tree fuchsia and a tub of small camellia-flowered floribunda begonias beside the front door.

This year, since we have begun sorting out the front yard into lawn and fruit trees in place of the original native trees and natural undergrowth, we also shall have space for pots of coleus, browallia (amethyst flower), calceolaria (pouch or slipper plant) or mimulus (monkey flower) beside the new lawn's edge in partial shade.

Baskets of ivy geraniums enjoy their summer site hanging on the sunny side of the house, while baskets of Alaska nasturtiums, with their white-and-green foliage and full range of nasturtium colors, enjoy the light shade of a lattice arbor.

The reception room at Ann West's Rancho Cucamonga office is surprisingly sparse. An old chair and table are set in one end, an old T.V. in the other.

Outside, a sign emblazoned with a bright-red hand hangs from an awning. Another sign shamelessly declares "PSYCHIC READER."

Such ornamentation would seem to give way to something equally ostentatious, but there sits Ann West, wearing a skirt and cotton shirt, in her waiting room listening to light music.

"Hello," she says casually, "I'm Madame Ann."

She leads her visitor from the bare waiting room into her dimly lit office. As the eyes adjust, a splash of pagan and christian symbolism emerges on the walls and floor.

A "magic" wand hangs over a candle and cross. Tarot cards of chawky reds and blues are splayed upon a table near a stack of Catholic prayer cards.

A bleeding figurine, affixed to a transparent crucifix, lies across the pages of a crusty bible, while nearby a crescent moon and queen of hearts dress a misplaced business card and hand-out advertisement.

"MADAME ANN. Spiritual Spychic (sic) Reader & Palm Tarot," the ad reads. "Don't let time or distance stand in the way of your happinaess (sic)."

The flyer's crude print reads like the broadside of a peddler's wagon that roamed the West a century ago.

It proclaims Madame Ann's power to treat a host of emotional maladies.

Her "gift," a sort of spiritual elixer, guarantees to "restore the lost nature" of those who suffer from poor health, financial straits, job dissatisfaction, unhappy marriages, depression, heartbreak, loneliness and simple bad luck.

West calls her self-proclaimed psychic ability "the gift" because she was showered with premonitions and visions since she was a child.

"A lot of people study up on psychic and how to get into it," she says. "I was born with it."

West, 24, was raised in San Bernardino by parents of Serbian descent. "I have a little gypsy in me," she says proudly.

At age 7, she first recognized her penchant for predicting the future.

The phone would ring and she could "feel" who was on the line before answering, she says. She would hear a knock at the door, and before opening it, would know who stood outside.

One day, a feeling that her uncle had died overcame her, and shortly afterwards she heard the grim news from her parents that he was dead.

Her mystical impressions did not set her apart from her family. "I felt like a normal ordinary child," she says. "All of my family was born with spiritual psychic vision."

While her mother and a few of her aunts have set up shop to read the futures of San Bernardino clients, family members are unable to perform the service for one another, she says. "We can only feel things for those we don't know."

Following tradition established by her mother and other relatives, West began marketing her extra-sensory forecasts in Rancho Cucamonga last year.

She offers a three-fold menu of palm, psychic and tarot card readings.

For $10, West will trace the brief route of the palm's life and love lines. Like a guide compassing a map, she tells her customers where to find fortune and sidestep peril.

Fifteen dollars will buy a psychic reading, in which West will peer into the eyes and absorb spiritual insites into a person's future, she says.

Another $20, and West will deal out her tarot cards for a more complete reading of one's future. "I pick up more with the cards," she says. "They show me things the other readings don't."

Any one of the three readings can take as long as an hour-and-a-half to complete. And she insists that there be only one person in the room with her at the time, because "vibrations" from onlookers will muddy her clairvoyance.

"A lot of people come for help and advice," she says. "It's easy to get advice from friends, but sometimes too many give it. Sometimes it's better for a stranger to give advice."

In all her readings, West says she recounts the past of her customers to demonstrate her psychic ability. "When you predict the past for them they have a lot more confidence in you."

She says she brings about seven customers a day, men and women of all ages, into her symbol-filled office.

West finds nothing unusual about her curious acquisition of pagan and Christian tokens. "It doesn't bother me, I'm Catholic," she says, adding that she is also a member of a Christian Spiritualist sect that welcomes psychics in its congregation.

Though her profession is spurned by many Christian faiths, she says, "I do pray to Jesus the son of God...He gave me the gift."

Compassing the Future

Neighbors try to banish dog that attacked boy were circulating the petition. Animal control officials did attempt to persuade Anderson to get rid of the dog, Lauden said. She added the neighborhood petitions could be used to strengthen a case for permanent quarantine of the dog by its owners. Animal control will require that a dog be permanently quarantined only after it has committed three unprovoked attacks, Hainey said.

According to a county bite report, Caesar attacked a child in Ontario last year. The bite was ruled "provoked," Hainey explained, because the dog bit a child who was playing with it on the owner's property. "For me, one unprovoked attack is enough," Mishica said. The only way left to force Caesar's owner to move the dog from the neighborhood is through a civil lawsuit, she said she was advised. The Mishicas also notified Central School District about the attack because there is a bus stop across the street from Anderson's home. "The Mishicas were concerned that nobody was helping them with their problem," said Tom Garnella, assistant superintendent in charge of business and transportation. "Our bus drivers are alerted to the situation," Garnella said. "I think it's a potential problem. I think it's important that a homeowner takes care of his or her fence. And (Cox) has a fence that is evidently in need of repair." Kathleen Shearer, who lives at 8442 Comet St., said Caesar had been in her yard before but she hasn't seen him loose recently. "I've been afraid of him. He's a big dog. I think anyone would be afraid of him. When I was walking my dog around the block, I always thought he would jump the fence and come get me," Shearer said. "I hate that dog," she added. Eddie Broadway, Anderson's 12-year-old son, asked if neighbors were trying to get rid of the dog. "They don't have to worry about it," he said. "He's going to go. My mother told me yesterday she's going to take him to the pound." Anderson could not be reached for comment.

THE SAVINGS DON'T STOP

STAMPS

By Lea Blauvelt
Copley News Service

We have had our A, B and C stamps and now we have our D's.

On Feb. 1, the U.S. Postal Service released its new green "D" stamp in sheet, coil and booklet form and as stamped envelopes. More than 5.8 billion of them were sent to post offices throughout the country in order to provide an adequate supply for the new 22-cent letter rate, which went into effect Sunday.

Also released on that date was a 14-cent postal card picturing Charles Carroll, a Maryland signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The "D" stamps were issued in Los Angeles, while the postal card first was released in New Carrollton, Md. No first-day ceremonies were scheduled for either city.

Since undenominational stamps are not permitted in the international mails, the "D" stamps and envelopes and the Carroll postal card can be used only within the United States.

Like the Oct. 11, 1981, brown "C" stamps, the "D" features a stylized eagle with lifted wings, facing left. "Domestic Mail" appears above it, and the letter "D" and "U.S. Postage" under it. The "C" stamp first was used when the first-class rate of 20 cents went into effect.

On May 22, 1978, the first undenominated stamp, the orange "A" (15 cents), was issued. The violet "B" (18-cent) version was issued March 15, 1981. The "A" and "B" stamps were slightly different in design. The words "Domestic Mail" did not appear over the eagle on those two.

The postal card, in the Patriot Series, carries "Charles Carroll Patriot" above the portrait and "U.S. Domestic Rate" below it. When the "A" set was issued, there was a John Hancock card (10 cents) released and a Robert Morris (13-cent) one with the "C" set. Both read "U.S. Domestic Rate" instead of a denomination.

Carroll, (1737-1832) the only Roman Catholic to sign the declaration, was well-known throughout this country in his later years as the last surviving signer. He signed it "Charles Carroll of Carrollton."

Because of short notice, the USPS has added 30 days to the usual 30-day first-day cancel ordering period. Therefore, all first-day cancellation orders should be postmarked no later than April 2.

Collectors are asked to buy the stamps at local post offices, affix them to addressed envelopes and mail them to: "Customer-Affixed D Stamps, Postmaster, Los Angeles, CA

GET ME TO THE CHURCH ON TIME

No matter how close you live to the place of your wedding, it's unlikely that you plan to arrive on foot. Here are some transportation options brides can consider.

It's traditional to rent a limousine. While the stretch (elongated) model may seem more expensive, it can hold more people. It's possible to get limousines to match your color scheme.

Some brides opt for more unique and memorable forms of transportation! A horse and buggy, perhaps, or an antique car. There even was a bride who went to the church in a fire truck!

It's perfectly acceptable to trim the budget by using your own or others' cars. To make them look more "special," put flowers on the antenna or decorate with streamers and balloons.

Planning for that special day? Consult your experts at Deborah's for all your bridal needs.

GREAT BRITAIN — Five British insects will be depicted on a set of stamps to be issued by Britain on March 12.

A buff-tailed bumblebee will appear on the 17-pence stamp; a sevenspot lady beetle on the 22-pence; the warbiter bush-cricket on the 29-pence; the stag beetle on the 31-pence, and the emperor dragonfly on the 34-pence.

FOR THE NOVICE — From time to time, beginning with this column, some of the most frequently asked questions by beginning collectors briefly will be answered here. (Questions from readers welcome.) Those new to the hobby may want to clip and save for future reference.

What is a cover? The word "cover" is a loose term standing for any envelope, card, aerogramme or stationery item that has passed through the mail traffic stream. It is understood to bear stamps (or meter stamp, imprinted or embossed indicium, or permit statements) with postal markings indicating or implying that mail passage. The exceptions are some "first-day covers" that never really go through the mail.

There are all kinds of covers we will take up later. Some are: advertising, airport dedication, combination, commercial, crash, first day, first flight, highway post office, mixed franking, mourning, patriotic, POW, pre-stamp, railroad, ship, stampless, territorial, war and wreck, to mention some of the most popular.

Each of the above is a separate field of collecting. Some have special societies serving their needs. These, too, will be written about as time goes on.

Upland has one finalist

Only one Upland American Youth Soccer Organization (AYSO) squad has advanced to Saturday's finals of the Area G playoffs.

The Upland boys' Division 3 squad will battle Ontario for the right to advance to sectional playoffs starting next month in Riverside. The Upland-Ontario game is set for 9 a.m. on the southfield field at the Upland soccer park.

Upland defeated Pomona by a 4-0 count to advance to the finals. Ontario also registered a shutout in the semifinals with a 3-0 decision over Hacienda Heights.

Two other Upland boys squads failed in their efforts to reach the finals. In Division 4 action, Hacienda Heights pinned a 2-1 loss on the locals while Chino was a 2-1 winner over Upland in Division 5 competition.

The results from Saturday's games:

Division 5 — Boys: Fontana 3, Alta Loma-Cucamonga-Etiwanda 2 (overtime); Chino 2, Upland 1. Girls: Diamond Bar 2, Claremont 0.

Saturday's schedule:

Newest bowling center set to open

Brunswick Upland Bowl, the West Valley's newest family recreation center, will open to the public Friday, according to Jim Woodward, manager of the new 36,000-square-foot Brunswick center.

Built at a cost of $3.6 million, Brunswick Upland Bowl is a complete family recreation facility with 40 bowling lanes, a video arcade and billiards room, lounge, bar and grill and a supervised children's play area.

Attending grand opening events will be Arnold D. Fogel, president of Brunswick Recreation Centers, a division of the Brunswick Corporation; Jim Chauncey, vice president, operations, Brunswick Western Region; and members of Brunswick's Advisory Staff on professional bowling stars.

Returning from a professional tour of Japan, Dana Miller, the newest star on Brunswick's staff will also participate in the opening. Miller, the winner of the 1983 U.S. Women's Open, has won two major tournaments in 1984: the Econite Classic in Dearborn Heights, Mich., and the $25,000 Houston Classic.

Also appearing at the Brunswick Upland Bowl Opening will be Virginia Norton, a leading member of the Professional Women Bowlers Tour, and Joe Joseph, one of the all-time bowling greats and member of the Bowling Hall of Fame. Norton, Joseph, and Miller will be available to offer bowling tips and chat with bowlers on Friday and Saturday.

Adding to the bowling excitement will be Dean Weiss, the well-known "Bo-Dino, the Dean of Clowns." Weiss, a former vice president of a Chicago, Ill. bank, gave up a successful career in the world of finance to become a full-time clown. "Bo-Dino" devotes his energies to children and their bowling participation. He has been bowling for many years and carries a respectable amateur average.

Bowlers at Brunswick Upland Bowl will find the most modern bowling environment in the world. Brunswick's Omni Seating provides comfort and maximum space for team play, while the AS-80 Colorvision scoring system allows players to view selected television programming while their scores are projected on the screen. No need to miss the Super Bowl or the World Series; bowlers can watch while they are participating in their sport.

Brunswick Upland Bowl will also provide players with the most sophisticated, reliable record keeping on the market today with the Level 6/23

Minicomputer, a boon to league secretaries.

Also appearing will be Danny Abril, the 1984-85 local Muscular Dystrophy Poster Child. Danny resides with his family in Rancho Cucamonga.

The Brunswick Corporation has been a major supporter of MDA for more than 10 years. The company has raised more than $4 million for "Jerry's kids," and continues to stage fund raisers in the behalf.

League sign-up activity has been brisk, but there are still a few more opening. Those interested in reserving league can call Jim at 946-7006.

"Our doors will swing wide open on Friday," said Woodward. "And we can promise you the best bowling center in the world!"

Casa Colina Hospital receives superior rating

Casa Colina Hospital for Rehabilitative Medicine in Pomona has been awarded a superior rating and a three-year accreditation for 1984-87 by the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities (CARF), following an on-site survey.

In a letter of commendation, Alan H. Toppel, executive director of CARF, pointed out that Casa Colina had demonstrated remarkable commitment and dedication to improving the quality of life for disabled people.

Dale Eazell, president of Casa Colina, expressed pride in the facility's nearly perfect rating. "Our ability to meet the exacting requirements of the CARF accreditation surveyors reflects the outstanding expertise of our staff and our determination to offer the best rehabilitation possible."

"As an acute care hospital, we also have accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH)," he continued. "Together, these accreditations assure the community and our patients that Casa Colina offers care of outstanding quality."

The report noted the staff's high qualifications, dedication and empathic attitude. "Excellent rapport exists among the staff members of the various departments and staff morale is excellent," Toppel said.

Programs evaluated included comprehensive inpatient rehabilitation, spinal cord injury rehabilitation, chronic pain management, outpatient medical rehabilitation and infant and early childhood development. All these programs were awarded special commendation for organization and effectiveness.

Free directory of summer camps is available from camp association

A free 32-page directory of accredited summer camps is now available from the American Camping Association.

The English/Spanish directory lists day camps, trip and travel camps, resident camps and approved sites. Camps are agency-affiliated, and include those run by the YMCA, YWCA, Scouts or medically related foundations, religiously affiliated or private independent groups.

All camps listed have qualified for the American Camping Association (ACA) accreditation by passing a rigid set of standards including selection and training of staff, living accommodations, food service, transportation policies and camp location.

"Many of the nearly 200 ACA accredited camps listed have both full- and partial-campership (scholarship) monies available for needy children," said Walt Parker, executive director.

For a free directory, write: American Camping Association, Southern California Section c/o Department of Recreation, Room 216, CSULB, 1250 Bellflower Blvd., Long Beach, Calif., 90840 or phone (213) 498-5781.
